

Can I record as close to my deadline as possible?

BPC Recording Studio has a "first-reserve-first-record" policy. If you contact us soon enough, then it will be possible to set your recording date as close as possible to the contest/audition deadline. However, we have a stringent two-week turnaround policy before the application deadline. This is in place to insure there is ample time to prepare your project to sound and look its very best.

It is also helpful to understand that other individuals are also bumping up against the exact same deadlines. Therefore, the Studio is juggling several recording projects simultaneously for that same deadline. (Having your pieces prepared long before your deadline does have other advantages as an audition or contest approaches.)
